

Craig Streit, et al. v. Farmers Group, Inc.

Year: 2011

Court: California Court of Appeal, Second Appellate District, Division Seven

Case Number: BC434852

UP submitted a brief in support of the Appellants, whose claim is that the insurance company violated its disclosure obligations under California Insurance Code section 381(f) by charging policyholders undisclosed “short-rate” premiums for cancellations of their insurance policy before the end of policy term. Section 381(f) is designed to help consumers make informed comparisons between policies by requiring insurance companies to provide in the policy an explicit statement of the premiums and mid-term cancellation fees associated with that policy.

UP’s brief was written pro bono by Ivo Labar and Maria Radwick of Kerr and Wagstaffe LLP, and Exec. Dir. Amy Bach.
