

Henkel Corporation vs. Lloyd's of London

Year: 2002

Court: California Supreme Court

Case Number: S0982427

The fundamental characteristic of a general liability policy (CGL) providing coverage on the basis of an occurrence is that the policy never expires even after the policy expires. If the occurrence causing the damage took place in the policy period, coverage should be provided regardless of when the damage first manifests.
