

UPdated Home Insurance Shopping Tips (2024)

A combination of factors are making property insurance more expensive and harder to find and keep in many parts of the country. Causes include drone imagery, extreme weather events associated with climate change, predictive models and insurers' business and profit objectives. UP is continuing to advance solutions and help consumers keep their assets protected despite reduced coverage options, high deductibles and high premiums.

Here are UPdated tips for our current times:

- As soon as you get a non-renewal notice, start shopping – don't procrastinate!
- Seek out an experienced insurance broker who has access to multiple options
- Do as much mitigation as you can to reduce the risk of your home being damaged or destroyed in a severe weather event. Seek out programs in your community that offer mitigation help and/or grants.
- Provide your insurer with documentation of completed mitigation steps and/or your community's risk reduction activities.
- Get quotes for different deductible levels and make an informed decision: A higher deductible reduces your premium. Too high a deductible means your insurance won't cover even a moderate-sized claim. Some policies have more than one deductible, which makes it even trickier. Do your best to understand your options and best choices.
- Avoid making small claims. Your claim history impacts your risk score. Your risk score impacts your insurance options and costs.
- Reduce/eliminate coverage you can live without (e.g. high dollar limits on contents, Other Structures)
- If you can't find a known brand insurer willing to insure your home, research the financial strength of the companies that offer you quotes.
- If a state-sponsored insurance plan is your only option, consider supplemental policies to fill gaps.

- Ask what discounts you may qualify for.
- Comparison shop as much as feasible.
- Bundle your home, auto and/or umbrella policies with one insurance company.
- Despite higher prices and limited options, aim to insure your home for replacement value, even if that means you don't pick the cheapest policy.
- Ideally, buy insurance that covers risks in your region (floods, earthquakes, hurricanes, hail)
