

Letter to American Law Institute regarding allocation rules in the draft Restatement (formerly Principles) of the Law of Liability Insurance

“The default rule [in allocation cases] should be “all sums” or joint and several liability, and that the burden for contribution and subrogation should be on the insurer, not the policyholder. Without a doubt, the law should encourage the timely availability of insurance funds to facilitate environmental cleanups, and discourage unnecessary litigation between policyholders and insurers. This is particularly true in complex long-tail environmental claims triggering multiple policies. The “all sums” rules stated in Preliminary Draft No. 6 accomplish those objectives far more effectively than the alternative allocation and contribution theories that have been advanced by others in connection with this draft.”

ALI Adviser Letter To Reporters 8-11-14 \(1\).pdf

---

The information presented in this publication is for general informational purposes and is not a substitute for legal advice. If you have a specific legal issue or problem, United Policyholders recommends that you consult with an attorney. Guidance on hiring professional help can be found in the “Find Help” section of www.uphelp.org. United Policyholders does not sell insurance or certify, endorse or warrant any of the insurance products, vendors, or professionals identified on our website.

Source:

<https://uphelp.org/letter-to-american-law-institute-regarding-allocation-rules-in-the-draft-restatement-formerly-principles-of-the-law-of-liability-insurance/> Date: April 17, 2026